ABOUT US

CEL CENTER FOR ARCHITECTURE+DESIGN is a professional non-profit organization (501 C3) aiming to advance the built environment and the community at large through collaboration and education.

The Center for Architecture+Design is a gallery space for public exhibitions and a forum for lectures and workshops from the architecture and design industry. It is a destination for all those interested in the built environment and creating beauty.

Creative Exchange Lab (CEL) is at the core of The Center. CEL is a city lab, a think tank, and an incubator space for architects, designers, artists, engineers, community leaders, and entrepreneurs. CEL members envision, prototype, and build their ideas in a constructive studio setting in collaboration with the community at large. Valuable portfolio experience and mentorship is given to those that choose to participate in the Center's public interest projects (PIP).

The main objective of The Center for Architecture +Design & CEL is to revitalize the Saint Louis community and its neighborhoods through education, cooperation, creativity and design.

CREATIVE EXCHANGE LAB
THE CENTER FOR ARCHITECTURE AND DESIGN SAINT LOUIS

The Center for Architecture + Design creates the learning environment.

The Center hosts forums, exhibitions, lectures, workshops, and community meetings on a monthly basis.

CEL provides the infrastructure for innovation.

- Affordable office/co-working space and open work area including a prototype facility and meeting rooms.
- A studio environment with hands-on professional mentors.
- A diverse membership base to promote “cross-pollination and innovative solutions to design challenges.”
- Experience with projects that will improve the culture and built environment of St. Louis’ neighborhoods.
- Support for a time-based economy within the lab to help foster collaboration across experience levels and individual specialities and the St. Louis community at large.
